The Scholarships.com User Data File comprises 100% opt-in, self-reported demographic details provided directly by registered users, including high school students, college-bound individuals, college students, young professionals, households, workforce members, alumni, and parents. These proactive users actively search online for scholarships, college information, student loans, banking, credit cards, and other financial resources. Each user completes a detailed profile questionnaire, sharing academic, demographic, geographic, and psychographic insights, as well as specific skills, interests, volunteer activities, and social actions. This profile data is then matched against Scholarships.com's proprietary database of scholarships, grants, and financial aid opportunities that align with the user's unique qualifications and financial needs.
